Curtain Club Members Select Coat of Arms

During their meeting Sunday morning the Curtain Club chose an insignia to represent their club. The insignia is a shield on which is printed "Catholic Drama" with a cross in the background. The insignia is in the hands of the executive committee now for further improvement.

A debate was also held during the meeting. The question Should the United States initiate a new league of nations? William Volk and Richard Chrosniak were for the affirmative; William Burns and Emil Schewey, for the negative. The club will not meet again until the new year.

Solemn Funeral Of Father Falter At St. Charles Dec. 10

The Solemn Memorial Funeral Mass for Father Falter was offered at St. Charles Seminary, the mother house of the Society of the Precious Blood, on December 10. The Most Reverend John T. McNicholas, Archbishop of Cincinnati, assisted at the throne and preached the sermon at the Mass.

Killed at the very outset of the North African campaign, Father Falter is the first Catholic chaplain of the U. S. armed forces to give his life for his country in the European-African operations of this war.

Father Falter and his troops had disembarked from the U. S. S. Joseph Hewes before that ship was torpedoed. The manner in which he met his death is as yet uncertain.

Measure

Ready for Distribution Friday or Saturday

Containing articles on Catholic Action, short stories, and book reviews, Measure, the college literary journal, will be distributed to the students the latter part of the week.

Of special note in the Christmas issue is the translation of a poem written by Franz Werfel, author, of "The Song of Bernadette" from German to English, translated by the Rev. Paul Speckbaugh, C.PP.S.

Proofs of Measure, which arrived at the college last Friday, were proofread and taken back to the printers at Oxford, Indiana, Saturday.

Fr. Martin Operated On For Appendicitis

Recuperating this week in the Jasper County Hospital at neighboring Rensselaer was the Rev. Henry Martin, C.PP.S., director of sports publicity for the college.

Father Martin was operated on for appendicitis Saturday morning and is reported recovering as well as could be desired.

Poetry Society Draws Plans For Next Year

Sunday, December 13, marked the second meeting of the college Poetry Society. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the president. No motions were made, but an informal discussion of the future activities of the club was held.

Plans were drawn up to request various members of the faculty, who have an interest in poetry, to address the club at future meetings. It is hoped that eventually a regular forum could be developed and poems or poets be discussed for the interest and information of the student.

Ladies Of Song Will Sing Here After Christmas

Appearing in the College Theater on January 16 will be the "Ladies of Song."

They will present a program of music of the famous composers—Bach, Handel, Schubert, and Guonond. Also on the program are Latin-American numbers and Songs of America, which include folk songs and patriotic numbers.

Starting their career together in the broadway operetta, "The Student Prince," the Ladies of Song have been presenting their music at public performances for the past few years.

Delia Marshall, Bernice Fowler, Pauline Dorhn, Helen Jones, and the piano virtuosa accompanist, Grace Price, form the musical group.

Paul Dallwig Delivers Interesting Lectures

In the College Theatre last night (Tuesday) was Mr. Paul Dallwig of Chicago, a member of the American Gem Society. Mr. Dallwig presented a very humorous and interesting lecture on "Gems, Jewels, and Junk."

The lecturer explained the origin and the use of stones in a very keen and unique manner. He told how the primatives loved precious stones very much and how many dark deeds have been committed to obtain jewels and gems.

In Minerology 1200 different minerals have been found and defined, but only fifty have been suitable for gem stones. Among the most precious of gem stones are the Emerald, Ruby, and the Sapphire. The diamond is also in this group but is the least valuable.

Emerald Most Valuable

The Emerald is the highest in value of all gems. It is worth four times as much in value as the same amount of diamond. The only gift Napolean ever gave Josephine was an Emerald necklace.

Trek Homeward Early, Vacation Begins Saturday

By Thomas Scheiber

Another Christmas vacation begins this coming Saturday noon, and again the students of St. Joseph's start the trek, in some cases a long one, in some cases just a hop, skip, and jump homeward. For about sixteen days then the buzzing of the humanity that is Collegeville will slow down to a crawl as the Community Students take over the campus for the holidays.

Some of those that go may not return for classes on January 4; some that return may soon after be called by their respective draft boards to enter into the service of the country.

At this time, the dreams for a white Christmas seem certain to become a realty, all of which adds up to the fact that the fallen snow and frigid temperatures augur not well for a comfortable trip home.

Not for some time to come will a St. Joe man with a long distance to go stand out on the highway and 'ride his thumb' to his destination; the war with its gas and tire rationing has put a premium on good rides for hitch-hikers and a high price on transportation.

Cook County Alumni Banquet On Dec. 22

Alumni of Cook county, Ill., will stage their fourth annual Christmas dinner Tuesday evening, December 22, at the Vine Gardens in Chicago.

There will be entertainment and dancing following the turkey dinner. No tickets are being sent out this year. Students and alumni who wish to attend may purchase their tickets at the door. Price of admission is two dollars per plate, three-fifty per couple.

Father Cletus F. Dirksen Says Society Needs New Foundation

Members of the Sanguinist Club for Catholic Action heard the Rev. Cletus Dirksen, C.PP.S., professor of Economics, introduce his series of lectures on the Social Encyclicals last Monday night.

Father Dirksen proposed that the encyclicals, as he interprets them, demand not only functional, but ideological changes—reforms of the very foundation of society. This change is needed, said Father Dirksen, ". . . Because this society is based on the false philosophy of individualism—of 'wolf against wolf'—as taught by Hobbes, Locke, and Hume."

Then Father Dirksen explained how the doctrines of this triumvirate led to the principle of competition endorsed by John Staurt Mill.

Says All Are Not Equal

"But this liberalism of competition will not work," Father Dirksen told the Sanguinists, "since we are not all equal. It leads to demagogy and dictatorship."

Bringing his conclusions to date, Father Dirksen said that Wendell Willkie lost the recent presidential election because he preached this liberal phlosophy.

How the proposed ideological changes are to be brought about through a corporate state, Father Dirksen proposed to explain in his lectures after the Christmas holidays.

Following the lecture, members of the club and guests quizzed the speaker on his views.

A Prayer For Christmas

Next week this time it will be Christmas Eve the civilized world over; from the frozen steppes of Russia to the great plains and mountains. Men shall pause and bow their heads. They shall wipe the blood from bayonets and kneel in snow-filled trenches. They shall drop upon one knee on the burning desert sands. And they shall look out across the mists to far horizons down the mountainside. And they shall dream, and pray, for Peace on Earth, Good Will toward Men.

At home there will be empty chairs, and in the churches empty pews. The sober recollection of other Christmasses will hover in the air like memories called up out of the distant past. But there will be no questions in the hearts of those who stand at peace within themselves and with God. Fired on by righteous motives, they shall strive with all their might against the foe, confident in the hope that victory will once again be theirs.

This will be their whispered prayer:

O God, lead us down the path of years till we can stand beside the crib at Bethlehem, and know the Peace and joy there. Bring us through the darkness of the night of war and death and hopelessness. Keep us from despair. Let not the sands of time run long before Thy will be done; before all men shall lay aside their arms and march abreast in love and comradeship. Make the night not too long, O God. For we are weak. Kindle in all men, this Christmas, the fire of Thy spirit.

The Footprints Of God

Deep winter is a season of great contrasts. Winds come and buffet the naked trees; nights are wild and free. Mornings come early and crisp, or late and gray. Whole days go by smothered in the silence of falling snow. Fields stand trackless and fallow, the broken stubble of summer corn pushing skyward, all brown with sleep. The sap is low.

There is a feeling of tremendous power and majesty about deep winter. It makes you want to stand—like the Arab who watched the sunrise on the desert—and say to the world: Behold, here are the footprints of God!

Following the Flickers

With Dick Schreiber

OVER AT THE PALACE Friday and Saturday, there will be something new in the way of horse opera. This time Hollywood threw in a flock of river scenes and a few steamboats to relieve the monotony of thundering hoofs and blazing six guns.

You can count on a new splurge of Westerns now that we are really, earnestly in the war. Westerns need very little props, but God's own great scenery.

One of the noticeable ill effects brought on by the war is a scarcity of good new pictures to fill program bills. Many theatres are running foreign films—particularly Russian propaganda pieces—and others have reverted to cheap, burlesque features.

Now for the reviews.

RITZ: Friday & Saturday

Cotinuing its new policy of showing a Western at both theatres on Friday and Saturday,the Rensselaer management has booked "Undercover Man," starring Bill Boyd as Hopalong Cassidy. This is harmless entertainment built along the popular lines that attract children. Legion Rating: A-1.

RITZ: Sunday, Monday, Tuesday

No one will be around over the weekend to get hurt when Hedy Lamarr and Walter Pidgeon come to town in "White Cargo." Adapted from the stage play, the show is definitely not fashioned for children. Legion Rating: B.

PALACE: Sunday, Monday, Tuesday

Robert Stack, Diana Barrymore, and Jon Hall tell the story of "Eagle Squadron," that courageous group of young Americans who went to England to fight their own war long before December 7. There is a good fast story here. But you'll be tremendously disappointed in Diana Barrymore, who just doesn't have the stuff that made her late father great. Legion Rating: A-2.

RITZ: Wednesday & Thursday

George Brent and Brenda Marshall are together in "You Can't Escape Forever." For all the dramatic title, this is merely a rather simple—and silly—tale about a newspaper managing editor, that terror of the city room. This "old man" gets himself all tied up with sob sisters and lovelorn columns to say nothing of the usual gang of racketeers who come in for some crime-busting. Legion Rating: A-2.

CAMPUS CAPERS

J. Nolan Mattingly said that he thought he might leave a little early for the Christmas vacation since he wants to see a little girl in the hills of Ky., who looks just like Daisy Mae. We once had an old hoss named Daisy Mae; but then there probably isn't any resemblance . . . To all of the campus students we wish to tell a short story of something that happened to one among us: Mops O'Donnell was asked by a good friend to mail some Christmas cards. He obligingly took the cards and stuck them in his jacket pocket. On February 16 he again wore the jacket. Lo and behold. There were the cards, signed, sealed, and stamped; but not mailed. Mops stepped over to the nearest mail box and dropped them in. The moral is, don't forget to do today what you should have done yesterday . . . Young Cliff Riede washed Leo Stofko's face in snow, shouting, "Praise the Lord and wash away the dirt." Maybe Cliff is going to be a preacher and is getting in a little practice at Leo's expense.

Entering into Don Schrenk's room the other day we noticed his small picture all alone in a six-by-eight inch frame. Oh what modesty some people possess. George Weilmuenster, for instance, has his pictures plastered all over the walls. He too is so very, very modest. Paul (four stripe) Reichert has been walking around in a daze lately. I wonder if that last Logic exam had anything to do with it. Fatty Kennedy seems to be out of circulation this year. Come on boy. Let's hear from you again. Of course, his roommate Mousy Gross is always heard from. He is one guy that never gets breathless. Did you notice Dick Kindig pitching arrows at a certain someone at the last home game? Now, now Richie, please don't blush so. You make us feel ashamed. Frank Murray is looking forward to Christmas, when Santa will bring him a Great Big Beautiful Doll. John McCabe is also hoping for a new wristwatch.

We have seen and heard of fellows nodding in class; but never have we seen or heard of a fellow going so sound asleep that he fell out of his chair. Gene Hoffman tries to deny it, even putting the blame on poor innocent Ray Heitzman. He says that Ray shoved the chair . . . We know; we know.

What Is Your Favorite Radio Entertainment?

By Vincent Giese

This seems to be the time of year for polls to come to the forefront. Usually, before the old year disappears altogether, people, especially newspaper people, have a mania to find out what other people liked or disliked during the past year.

STUFF is no exception. Though polls are taken on everything from how many times a week people eat rice crispies to who is the best second fiddler in the country, STUFF decided to be conservative and confine itself within the radius of the radio dial.

Since the radio seems to be the favorite pass time of many of the students (at least a stroll down the hallways of any residence hall points to that conclusion), we tried to find out who's tops in listening. Here are St. Joe's favorite programs:

Fred Beckman, freshman from Ft. Wayne, Indiana: Kraft Music Hall; Bob Hope; Hour of Charm.

Gus Courchene freshman from Flint, Michigan; Kraft Music Hall; Fibber McGee and Molly; Spotlight Bands.

James Heckle, sopohmore from Youngstown, Ohio: Kraft Music Hall; Bob Hope.

Lincoln Piotrowski, senior from Chicago, Ill.: March of Time; Gabriel Heater; Life Can be Beautiful.

Chuck Lewandowski, senior from Chicago, Ill.: Boake Carter; Waltz Time (Abe Lyman); Camel Caravan.

Though the above is just a cross section of the student body, the poll seems to indicate that the prefects can find at least most of their boys in their rooms on Thursday evenings, listening to the Kraft Music Hall. More power to Bing Crosby.

Senior Sketches

By Tom Scheiber

All the way from Louisville, Ky., comes Charles George Klapheke, a transfer student from the University of Louisville in his sophomore year. Charles was born at Louisville, December 28, 1920.

Charlie played three years of varsity football at St. Xavier High School in Louisville and was engaged in various other student activities there. He dropped the football game when an injury as a member of the Louisville U. frosh squad forced him to retire. At St. Joe he has won letters as a boxer and as a member of the tennis team.

After graduation at the end of this semester in January, Charlie, who enlisted in the Navy's V-7 program, will no doubt be called into the service. After the war he will either take up chemistry in the Navy, or be an analytical chemist after he gets his discharge from the Navy.

Majoring in chemistry, he will be granted a BS degree; his minor subjects are English and geology. Charles is a member of the Columbian Literary Society and is vice-president of the Raleigh Smoking Club.

We would just like to remind the students that there is a thing called sportsmanship and that the St. Joe followers had no right booing at the Illinois Wesleyan game last Thursday night.

According to athletic ethics, the visiting team is to be treated as a guest. We just thought we would remind you of the fact.

It is customary that the St. Joe students occupy the seats on the West side of the fieldhouse floor. Give the team a break and sit together at the games and make a little noise. It sometimes helps.

Jerry (Moon) Mullen is the first basketball player to leave school to join the armed services since the season began. Saturday was Moon's last at St. Joe as he will be drafted very shortly.

The crowd seemed to be in favor of Charley Hodges entering the Illinois Wesleyan game when Knobby Walsh went out on fouls in the closing minutes of the tilt. Charley came through, too, by the way.

After watching several intramural basketball games last week, we wonder whether it wouldn't be more appropriate to have goal posts in the old gym instead of basketball hoops. If you don't believe us watch a game or two.

Intramural Bowling League Rolls Along

Up to the present John Feicht holds the distinction of leading three departments in Intramural bowling. Besides being captain of one of the two leading aggregations, he has the highest game average, and last Friday he rolled a 215 game which tops the efforts of anyone else in single game scores.

The Rev. Edward Roof, C.PP.S., Intramural bowling director, announced as prizes each member of the team winning the league title will receive a trophy in addition to the five dollars which the team receives. The runner-up will also be awarded five dollars as will be the team with the highest single game total.

The individual with the highest single game score will get three dollars. Five dollars will go to the individual with the highest total score, with the second and third place winners in this department receiving three and two dollars respectively.

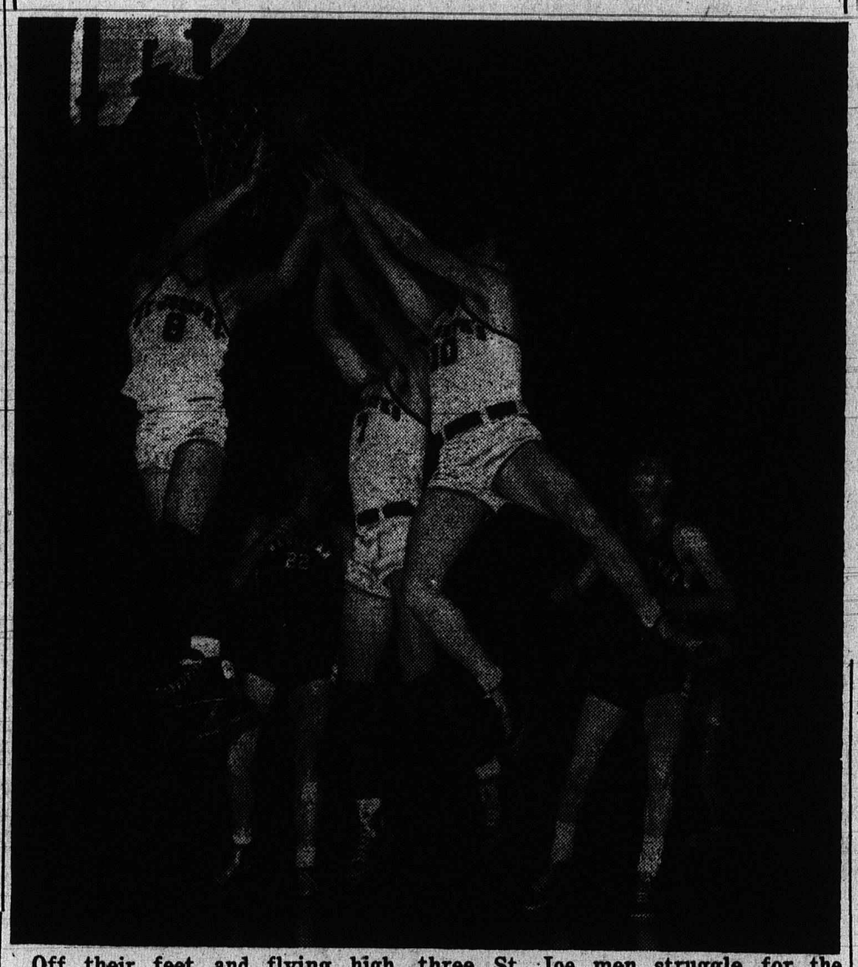
Flying High For This One



Off their feet and flying high, three St. Joe men struggle for the leather during the St. Joe-Illinois Wesleyan game. This was the Puma's first home game, played in the Collegeville Fieldhouse. Bernie Hoffman, veteran Puma cager, hit the hoop for a grand total of twenty points in this game.

The Puma Cubs will seek their second victory against one setback tonight (Wednesday) when they tangle with Rensselaer high in Rensselaer.

Coach Dick Scharf will probably rely upon the same lineup which last week defeated Brook. It is Hunnefield and Dobe at forwards, Richert, center, with Wunderlich and Meiners, guards.

Terveer Goes, Home To Recuperate

After conquering a seige of tularomia—commonly known as rabbit fever—John Terveer, sophomore from Decatur, Ind., returned to his home last week for a rest over the Christmas holidays. He will resume his studies in the pre-med department when school reopens, January 4.

Jiggs Huysman Sparks Drive Of Dienhartmen

"Licking their chops" today after a victory feast at Chicago with Loyola University acting as hosts, were the St. Joe College Pumas. The last course of the evening was garnished with a 33-30 victory over an ancient rival whom the Pumas were meeting for the first time since 1924.

With both teams playing slowly and cautiously, St. Joe took the lead at the start and maintained it until the end of the half when they were out in front 17-11. In a fast breaking second half, which found big Jiggs Huysman on the bench with three personal fouls, Loyola U. stepped out to a 23-20 lead.

When Coach Joe Dienhart put his towering center back into the game, the situation was soon well in hand for the Pumas. Taking rebounds on both ends of the court and covering the floor like a tent, Huysman stood out like a windmill in a desert.

Third Straight Victory

In winning their third straight game, the Pumas gave some indication of playng the high-class brand of ball of which they are capable. Captain Bernie Hoffman again took high scoring honors for the evening with 14 points and envoked a little strategy in the closing minutes of the game by declining four free throws for his team to keep possession of the ball.

Guard Don Schrenk again covered the back court like a military police and aided the Puma cause with four points from the free throw line. Leading the abortive uprising for Loyala U. were forwards Dwan and Stanton, with the former bagging 11 points to take second-place honors in the scoring books.

The Pumas, with three wins and one loss, will disband for the Christmas holidays until they get together again for a soiree with Illinois Normal, at Bloomington on January 9.

Community Students Keep Campus Alive Over Holidays

St. Joe will celebrate fittingly the Christmas holidays despite the absence of most of the students. Christmas Day, the feast of Blessed Gaspar, the founder of the Society of the Precious Blood, and New Year's Day will see special festivities.

Already the choir is practicing hard on the traditional Christmas music. The solemn "Missa Liturgica" will be sung on Christmas day. Father Koch, the director, is taking through many new numbers in addition to those used last year.

The Chapel, too, will reflect the joy of the holy season. Beautiful decorations will grace the sanctuary and the body of the Chapel. They will all center around the large crib scene which will cover three side altars on the Gospel side. Laverne Sweederman and his two assistant sacristants have been making preparations for the decorations for the past month.

Will Present Play

The Christmas spirit will also be kept alive by the programs and entertainments planned for those two weeks. On Christmas Eve, a play written by one of the students will be staged.

On three succssive nights, Dec. 28, 29, and 30, programs will be presented by the fourth, fifth, and sixth-year community students respectively. Last year, similar class nights occasioned much enjoyment.

The coming of the New Year will be celebrated by a party for the brothers and students. Talks by the priests, quartets and group singing, and a light lunch will probably make up most of the program.

Portraits Ready

Individual portraits, which many of the students had taken recently, came back from the photographers last Friday.

Bill Smith, business manager of Phase, asks that all those who ordered portraits pick them up at the Phase office in the Administration Buiding as soon as possible, and also bring their money with them.

Academy's Newman Club Plans Play

A three-act play, "His Father's Son," will be presented some time in the near future in the College Theatre by the Academy's Newman Club. This will be the first play of the year by the Academy dramatic society.

The play was selected by, and is under the direction of, the Rev. Robert Koch, C.PP.S., Newman Club Moderator.

Cast of the production includes James Dobe, Nathan Doyle; Gerald Leahy, Douglas Doyle; Jerome Lange, Hiram McBinney; Aubrey Serewicz, Jerry McBinney; James Quinlivan, Lancello Griffith; James McHugh, Jim O'Calahan; Edmund Joseph, Timothy Glenn; August Schultheis, Philip Crane; Robert McNamara Harrison Fiske; James Richert, Harry Atkins; Peter Beltemacchi, John Hartwell; Charles Teany, Horace Russell; John Wunderlich, Raymond Sears; and Ordway Mitchell, Edward McElroy.

Glee Club Concert Praised By Students

Before a delighted audience in the College Theatre, St. Joseph's Glee Club presented its first public concert last Saturday night; the Rev. Robert B. Koch, C.PP.S., directed the program.

Besides several patriotic and semi-classical songs by the entire glee club, novelty, instrumental, and solo numbers met with the approval of the audience.

Soloists were Tom Shea, James Murray, and Tom Joyce; vocalists, Vasco Luchi, violinist, and Paul Funk, pianist. A quartet composed of Charles Hipp, Art Hoctor, Wally Spalding, and Tom Scheiber also sang a few songs during the evening.

Outstanding on the program in the viewpoint of the audience was the piano playing by Paul Funk, freshman, who has exhibited his ability as a pianist on the radio several times.

Here is the complete program:

Letters To The Editor

During the time of war it is necessary for a minority to rule to enable fast strategic military moves which enable our armed forces to score victorious battles.

It is also essential in wartime, as it is in time of peace, to train our young men to have a strong sense of responsibility so they may successfully build themselves and our country into something great after the war.

High school and college are an ideal place to acquire this training. Work both in studies and daily living routine should be done because the student feels that it must be done to better himself, not because there is an immediate reward or "convincer" connected with it. In colleges where there are fraternities and sororities the students do their work because they know that if they don't do it they will not make the grade. They are not forced to study, keep regular hours, etc., but they execute these duties because they know that if they do not take it upon themselves to do it, no one else will force them to do it or do it for them. In this manner they develop a sense of responsibility and upon their debut into society, they are able to cope with problems facing them and make a success of their lives.

One method of developing a sense of responsibility in college is through the student council. It is through the council that the ideas of the student body are transmitted to the faculty.

The student council should devise a method such as a request box whereby the students may present their ideas to the members of the council. In this manner the student council can act as a labor union in mediation between the faculty and the students.

The Academy Corner

By Ed McElroy

Gentleman of the Week presents James (Red) Quinlivan, senior from Richmond, Indiana, who was born July 26, 1925, in Richmond. Red is a graduate of St. Mary's grammar school. He entered St. Joseph's in the fall of 1940.

While at St. Joe, Jim was junior class editor of the Academy's first year book. He was captain of the championship intramural basketball team of 1942, and was also on the intramural all-stars in basketball last year. This year he is on the high school varsity.

After he has completed his high school education he will join the Army Air Corps if possible. After the war is over he hopes to go to college and study law.

Jerry McNamara, class of '41, was the sixth alumnus of the Academy to enter the armed forces of Uncle Sam. He enlisted in the Navy last month. He was then sent to Great Lakes, and after three weeks of training he was given his honorable discharge for 90 days. After his 90 days are up he will go back into service again.

While at St. Joe, Jerry was center fielder on the Academy Cubs first baseball team. He was considered by many as an outstanding defensive player. He also was a dangerous hitter, having a batting average of .424 for the season of 1940 and '41.

Last week saw the beginning of intramural basketball in the Academy. Five players, considered outstanding in the group, were elected to captain the five individual teams. Captains chosen were Bob McNamara, Eddie Joe, Gerry Leahy, Rich Latendresse, and Jack Reich.

Intramural basketball last year developed into one of the most important extra-curricular activities in the Academy. Enthusiasm ranks high and all the students should be participating. Connie Vanderkolk, of the college department, will take over the intramural program.

The seniors took advantage of their town-night permission for the first time since Nov. The basket ball varsity also had town permission. Many attended the basketball game between Rensselaer and Crown Point. Our varsity had town permission so they could scout Rensselaer.
